The ACL Alternative Fund was positive in the first half of 2026, recording five months of positive performance between January and May before a negative June.

The US-Iran conflict and closure of the Strait of Hormuz were key drivers of market trends during the first half of 2026, marking an important turning point across a range of markets. The year began with a continuation of the uptrends seen in precious metals during 2025, alongside broadly positive equity markets, particularly outside the US. From late February, however, escalation of the US-Iran conflict drove a sharp increase in risk-off sentiment and inflation concerns. As we moved into Q2, investor focus shifted towards ceasefire efforts and the prospect of the Strait reopening. De-escalation during the quarter saw energy prices retrace and equity markets rally, but the persistence of inflation concerns contributed to a hawkish shift in monetary policy expectations in the US and elsewhere.

Drivers of the ACL Alternative Fund's positive performance included gains in energy, equities, currencies and metals, with partially offsetting losses reported in agricultural commodities and fixed income. At the trading style level[3], Trendfollowing led gains, with all non-Trendfollowing trading styles also positive.

Energy markets generated the ACL Alternative Fund's largest gains over the period. Long positions in crude oil and distillate contracts were established in early Q1, with geopolitical uncertainty and escalating tensions in the Middle East supporting prices. Oil prices then spiked in late February and early March following US and Israeli attacks on Iran. The ACL Alternative Fund realised strong gains from long positions as prices rose sharply, with the closure of the Strait of Hormuz raising significant concerns over global energy supplies.

Equities also contributed positively. Global stock markets rallied over the 6-month period despite the outbreak of the conflict in Iran contributing to a notable sell-off in the latter part of Q1. Strong momentum in AI and technology-related stocks remained a key feature of equity markets, with US technology stocks and AI-exposed Asian markets, including South Korea, Taiwan and Japan, outperforming many other global markets. Long exposures in the sector generated positive performance over the period.

Within currencies, gains were initially concentrated in emerging market currencies in Q1, most notably from long positions in the Brazilian Real and Mexican Peso. As Q2 progressed, long US Dollar positions relative to several peer major currencies led to gains as the US currency strengthened on higher US Treasury yields, resilient US economic data and a more hawkish outlook for US interest rates.

Metals was another sector which added to performance, with particularly strong gains from precious metals early in the year. Gold and silver extended the strong uptrends seen during the previous year and rallied to record highs early in 2026, benefiting from geopolitical uncertainty and demand for perceived safe-haven assets. The ACL Alternative Fund recorded gains from long positions in January 2026, before long-term price trends began to unwind.

Negatively for performance, losses were reported within agricultural commodities. Short positions in wheat detracted during Q1 as prices rose on weather-related concerns over US supplies. Further losses in the sector related to shorts in sugar, as expectations of increased demand for its use in ethanol production due to elevated oil prices led to a reversal in price trends.

[3]ACL Alternative Fund's appointed Trading Advisors have been classified in accordance with the Trading Style that best describes each of their primary trading strategies as determined by Abbey Capital.

Global bond yields moved broadly higher during the first half of 2026. However, this move was quite choppy at times with a lack of persistent price trends and several reversals occurring. This created a challenging backdrop in the sector for many of the ACL Alternative Fund's underlying Commodity Trading Advisors (CTAs). Losses stemmed primarily from longs held in early March, when yields rose alongside higher oil prices, increased inflation concerns and a more hawkish outlook for monetary policy. Further losses then arose from short positions in the second half of May, when this move higher in global yields corrected as hopes for the Strait of Hormuz reopening saw oil prices decline and inflation worries ease.

The ACL Alternative Fund's USD Share Class A has delivered total cumulative returns of +483.08%[4] since inception, versus +817.41% for the S&P 500 Total Return Index and +215.82% for the SG CTA Index[5] over the same time frame.

During the period we added one Trendfollowing CTA to the ACL Alternative Fund.

The ACL Alternative Fund continued to target a risk allocation to Trendfollowing strategies of 50-60% of portfolio risk through the year, with the balance allocated to diversifying non-Trendfollowing strategies[6]. We continued to target allocations to trading advisors at 21% annualised volatility.

Since January 2013, the ACDFF USD A has delivered total cumulative returns (including pro forma returns) of +77.36%[7], versus +569.77% for the S&P 500 Total Return Index and +65.00% for the SG CTA Index[5] over the same time frame.

[4]The ACL Alternative Fund is a segregated account of ACL Alternative Fund SAC Limited. The ACL Alternative Fund (USD Share Class A) commenced as a program in December 2000 and was incorporated as a Fund in January 2002. As at December 31, 2025 the 1, 5 & 10 year annualised returns of ACL Alternative Fund USD Share Class A were -1.74%, +5.11% & +3.26%. Return figures shown are net of fees and include interest (pro forma interest is included from December 2000 – April 2001, actual interest thereafter). Please note that due to different fee structures within the ACL Alternative Fund, different share classes will have different returns. Some ACL Alternative Fund share classes may have generated a lower return than the ACL Alternative Fund USD Share Class A. Past results are not indicative of future results. Investing in managed futures is not suitable for all investors given the level of risk involved, including the risk of total loss of initial investment.

[5] The above is shown for illustrative purposes only. None of the funds managed by Abbey Capital Limited are benchmarked against any index. The SG CTA Index is derived from data which is self-reported by investment managers based on the performance of privately managed funds. In contrast the S&P 500 Total Return Index is an index comprising of publicly traded shares. As a result, these indices may not be directly comparable and the above is shown for illustrative purposes only.

Abbey Capital Limited – Investment Manager

As we have since our founding in 2000, we remain committed to delivering diversification[8] and liquidity[9] to our broad investor base through a range of alternative investment offerings, including private placement products, customised solutions, US mutual funds and UCITS products.

The first half of 2026 presented a favourable environment for managed futures strategies, with positive performance during the latter half of 2025 continuing into this year. At Abbey Capital we hold a deep conviction in the value of managed futures. That conviction is underpinned by our ongoing commitment to education, by the depth of our team and research capabilities and by our belief that managed futures can play an important role in investor portfolios.

This belief is reflected in the quality of work undertaken by the CTAs that our funds allocate to. As we do ourselves, they strive to learn, adapt and continually refine the diversified[8] sources of return they seek to extract from markets. Collectively, we focus on the objective of delivering quality products to investor portfolios that are supported by rigorous research and risk management.

This year we reached a new record level of assets under management and noted continued interest amongst investors in our strategies.

As we look ahead, we continue to invest significantly in the infrastructure and technologies that support our investment process. This includes ongoing research into the capabilities and potential applications of AI, ensuring that we are well positioned to adopt these technologies where they can enhance our investment capabilities.

While we cannot control when and where profitable trends and opportunities may arise, we remain committed to our multi-manager approach to managed futures investing.

In closing, we would like to thank our Fund investors once again for the trust and support you have shown us during the year to date and over many years.

The three levels of the fair value hierarchy under ASC 820 are described below:

- Level 1 – Valuations based on unadjusted quoted prices in active markets for identical assets or liabilities that the Fund has the ability to access;

8. Financial Instruments

The main risks arising from the Fund's financial instruments are as follows:

Investment in ACL Alternative Fund

The Fund is subject to the risks associated with the ACL Alternative Fund's investments and may also be adversely impacted by the activities of other shareholders in the ACL Alternative Fund. The risks arising from the ACL Alternative Fund's investments are set out in the notes to the ACL Alternative Fund's Financial Statements.

Market risk

Market risk represents the potential loss that can be caused by a change in the market value of the financial instruments. The Fund's exposure to market risk results from its direct investment in the ACL Alternative Fund and is therefore indirectly determined by a number of factors including interest rates, foreign currency exchange and market volatility arising from the ACL Alternative Fund's investments in the Trading Funds. Investments by the ACL Alternative Fund into the Trading Funds may be made in markets located in countries which are exposed to the risks of political change or years of political uncertainty which could adversely affect the market value of the investments held by the ACL Alternative Fund.

The ACL Alternative Fund, through its investments into the Trading Funds, may invest in securities or derivatives which are unlisted or for which there is no active market. For example, the Trading Funds may invest in derivatives with direct or indirect exposure to emerging markets and such investments may be subject to increased political risk or adverse currency movements compared to securities traded in more developed markets. In addition, the Trading Funds may acquire investments which are only traded over-the-counter. Accurately valuing and realizing such investments, or closing out positions in such investments at appropriate prices, may not always be possible.

Operational Risk

Pursuant to Investment Manager's Risk Management Policy, risks throughout the Investment Manager are identified, measured, assessed and monitored in the Risk Register. This system identifies factors that could cause risk, including operational risk, measures to reduce risk and any required solutions. It is reviewed on an ongoing basis by the respective business units and the Risk Management Department. Reviews are completed by staff in consultation with the Risk Management Department.

Leverage

Under AIFMD, the Investment Manager is required to express the level which the Fund's leverage will not exceed, as a ratio between the Fund's total exposure and its Net Asset Value. AIFMD prescribes two methodologies for calculating overall exposure of a fund: the "gross methodology" and the "commitment methodology". These methodologies are briefly summarized below but are set out in full detail in AIFMD.

The commitment methodology takes account of the hedging and netting arrangements employed by a fund at any given time (purchased and sold derivative positions will be netted where both relate strictly to the same underlying asset). By contrast, the gross methodology does not take account of the netting or hedging arrangements employed by a fund.

Based on the methodologies for calculating global exposure outlined above, the Fund's maximum expected level of leverage is one time the Net Asset Value of the Fund using the Gross method. The Fund's maximum expected level of leverage is also one time the Net Asset Value of the Fund using the Commitment method.

Liquidity risk

In order to ensure that cash is available for the Fund to meet redemption requests, the Investment Manager has established and maintains risk management policies and systems which are designed to ensure that the Fund maintains a level of liquidity appropriate to its underlying obligations. The liquidity of the Fund is subject to the risks associated with the ACL Alternative Fund's investments and may also be adversely impacted by the activities of other shareholders in the ACL Alternative Fund. The liquidity risks arising from the ACL Alternative Fund's investments and the management of these risks by the Investment Manager are set out in the notes to the ACL Alternative Fund's unaudited interim Financial Statements.
